

The Incognito Easter Message of Master Noah St. John

The reader should first view the following video of Noah St. John.

Young Master Noah takes us into the depths of despair (and what might be called Hell) and by virtue of that leadership we have already entered into that Hell psychologically and we are crying out, "O God, O God. It's over. It was a dream. This life was a dream. It wasn't ever real. It was phony. It was horrible. frightening. So frightening (and I think of the hired, girl servant in the film Amadeus). It's over. I am dead. I have died. The rest is only the pain to come.

"And then the miracle. Out of the blue! What was false was actually the fear. That's what was a dream, a nightmare. That's what never had to be lived, had I known in advance. But then what a joy to realize that my life is real as I knew it. Fear was the dream. Fear led me to despair. Instead of wandering apart from each other, we (our family) would all remain together like this forever more and on in to a new life, but together. Together. That's the greatest of all. We're together.

"And then the beauty of the justification, the magical mile together, always together. The car was there before I was born. It was my car. It was our car. It belongs to everyone and I am one of everyone and so, therefore, it belongs to me, as one of the individuals of this union called family. No one is to be left out. We are in this together, always together, for we are a family."

It's an Easter message, now I think, provided by an Omnipotent and Benevolent Power, that we really have no reason to fear, as though to say, "for though Jesus was dead, I am exhilarated to tell you that he has risen from the dead." God has validated what this man always told us, that we are free from all shackles and are invited to join the band of this miraculous man and we will also be forever free of the chains of fear, for we personally know as a fact that we have no reason ever again to be afraid. "His Truth is Marching On." That is the promise and it is to this that Wesley testified, "what the gospel promises has been accomplished in my soul", i.e., I no longer fear. I am not afraid. I will do his bidding, I will empty myself entirely in order that Jesus' love might be manifested through me to my blind brothers and sisters, who live in fear.
